Wufoo’s responsive templates adapt to any screen size, and the platform lets you hide fields until they become relevant (conditional logic). Compared with static HTML forms, users see a shorter, more intuitive experience, which typically raises completion rates by 10-15 %. Instead of asking for a name, email, and a single comment, many businesses pile on checkboxes, file uploads, and long-form text fields. Wufoo’s analytics show exactly where users drop off, allowing you to trim the form to the essentials.
