of lesson plans. Audit current databases before the July 1 rollout; map each field to Starfall's schema. Run a sandbox import with a representative data set and verify that no records are truncated. Schedule a two-week data lock window to resolve any mismatches before the academic year begins. Stakeholder emails that merely announce the new calendar without explaining the impact on holidays, professional development days, and grading periods cause confusion and resistance. Teachers report up to 30 % higher inquiry volume during the first month, pulling them away from instruction.
